NC4 Expands Situational Readiness Umbrella with ActivTravel™

NC4's Agreement to Acquire TranSecur Improves Situational Awareness of Travel Risks

EL SEGUNDO, CA – September 21, 2009 – NC4, Inc., the leader in Situational Readiness solutions for incident monitoring, crisis management, and secure collaboration, today announced ActivTravel™, NC4's travel risk management offering that combines intelligence on global all-hazards incidents with detailed employee travel data, to heighten an organization's overall situational awareness and readiness to respond to risks. ActivTravel is the result of a successful technological integration of NC4's External Situational Awareness (ESA) service with TranSecur's Global Security Information (GSI) service and Traveler Management Service.

ActivTravel combines the capabilities of both NC4 and TranSecur, giving customers the ability to be notified of incidents that may affect the safety and security of corporate travelers. With the ability to link directly to real-time traveler information from the ESA map, travelers can be located at any time based on their flight, ground transportation or hotel itineraries. Along with the incident icons displayed on the ESA map, ActivTravel displays traveler icons so members can instantly see locations around the world where they have active or pending travelers in relation to an unfolding incident. They can then drill down to itinerary details, determine if any of those travelers are in harm's way and communicate with the affected travelers.

As a member of both NC4 and TranSecur services, Navistar International Corporation recognizes how the combined strengths of these technologies will further improve their overall risk management capabilities. "ActivTravel gives us the ability to quickly visualize who is in a particular location at any given time so that when we receive an ESA alert that an incident has occurred, we're better prepared to assess risks to our traveling employees and make more informed decisions on how best to address the situation," said John Martinicky, director of global security for Navistar. "This level of intelligence is invaluable to our organizations risk management and mitigation program."

“As organizations expand their global footprint, it’s increasingly important for them to have up-to-date intelligence on global risks so that they can fulfill their duty of care obligation to employees,” said Noel Koch, President and CEO of TranSecur. “Together with NC4, we’re able to offer a unique travel-related service to our customers, to better equip them to handle unexpected situations.”

“ActivTravel marks the arrival of a travel risk management solution that combines intelligence on global all-hazards incidents with detailed employee travel data, which acts to heighten an organization’s overall situational awareness and readiness to respond to risks,” said Jim Montagnino, President and CEO of NC4. “The global effects of the H1N1 Influenza outbreaks and the recent attacks on hotels in Jakarta and elsewhere around the world underscore the need for ActivTravel. With this new offering, we continue to deliver on our promise to provide customers with accurate, timely and secure information to manage uncertainty.” The combination of the ESA and GSI offerings with ActivTravel provides the most comprehensive travel risk management solution in the industry. ActivTravel will be generally available in the fourth quarter of 2009.
